

Expanded metal comes in diamond shaped patterns. It is available in "Standard" or what can be called "Raised Expanded Metal" in which case it has a rough feeling to it, or "Flattened Expanded Metal" which means it has a Flattened Metal surface. The "Raised Expanded Metal" type is commonly used where light vehicles are being loaded on ramps and other purposes. The "Flattened" type is often used as hand and finger guards as well as for security screens. The first number in the description roughly designates the narrow opening size of the diamond.

PERFORATED METAL

Perforated Metal has a great many applications such as trim, covers, belt and machine guards, ventilators, screens, grilles, and the like. Precision manufactured with clean walled perforations, free from burrs. Perforated Metal gives you safety, durability, sanitation, rigidity, and strength. Can be sheared, formed, framed, welded and finished with paint, enamel, lacquer, plating, or otherwise.

Available in a great variety of perforation patterns, types and gauges of metals, and sizes of sheet and coil. Check with us for your specific needs.

THESE ARE BUT SIX OF THE MANY PATTERNS

The numbers below indicate the Gauge thickness of the material and then the size sheet available. The following fraction indicates the holes size and then the distance between the hole centers and whether or not the holes are staggered. It is wise to order a Standard size because a special of the item may be very expensive.
